Dean's Message

Professor Bradley R. BARNES, Dean of School of Business

Dear Friends.

Welcome to BIZ Issue 16, the official newsletter of the School of Business at the Hang Seng University of Hong Kong. Firstly, I wish to warmly welcome all students back to campus. These last few years have been unprecedented, what with the demonstrations and Covid–19, we have experienced pretty dismal times. However, onwards and upwards, as the new normal kicks in, we can still be proud of our Hong Kong, as perhaps being the world's safest city to reside in at the moment.

At the University, we will attempt to revert back to face-to-face teaching again, for the first time in semester 1 for a couple of years and we sincerely hope this will prove to be a better experience for everyone. In fact, our faculty members are all so pleased to see our happy students, bringing vibrance and life back to our campus again. Whilst we unfortunately need to wear our masks, my heartfelt gratitude and sympathy to you all, as I realise it's so tough wearing masks in class. I am especially grateful to our teaching staff, as they grapple through three hours of lectures to deliver for the School. I know it's a really difficult job, as I experienced such huge discomfort whilst teaching for three hours wearing the mask last summer. I pay tribute to our staff and wish to thank them kindly!!!

I would like to welcome our new post-graduate students. We now have over 100 master's degree students, which is a record high thanks to the great work of the MSc Entrepreneurial Management team and the effective launch of our new Master of Business Management. A special thank you to the project teams!!!

Finally, I wish everyone the best of luck, happiness and moreover, good health for this academic year and in the future. Be resilient in your studies and work hard. Be good and be patient. I believe good things will come to those that try their best in their studies and life!!!

Warm wishes, Dean of the School of Business

A New Chapter of the Research Institute for Business-an interview with Professor Louis Cheng

Dr. S H Ho Professor of Banking and Finance Director of the Research Institute for Business (RIB)

What strengths do you think the University and the School have?

During my 32 years of academic career, I have served in different higher education institutions and public institutions before joining the Hang Seng University of Hong Kong (HSUHK) as Dr. S H Ho Professor of Banking and Finance. Therefore, I am able to compare the niche of HSUHK relative to other universities in Hong Kong and overseas. In my view, the key to sustainable development of HSUHK lies in stable sources of good students, providing strong career prospects for graduates, and receiving support donations infrastructure development. Being a non-profit private liberal-arts-oriented university with an award-winning green campus, HSUHK is able to offer state-of-the-art learning, teaching. research residential facilities to meet the demands of quality tertiary education in the 21st century.

As the School of Business (SBUS) is the largest one among the five Schools (Business, Communication. Decision Humanities Sciences. Social Science, and Translation and Foreign Languages) with a dedicated group of academic staff, I strongly believe that SBUS is well-positioned to provide quality education in both undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

What is the Research Institute for Business's (RIB) plan in the future? Can vou give few words a encourage and enlighten our faculty regarding research?

The School of Business supports research as a critical component to achieve the university mission as a leading private liberal-arts-oriented university in the region which recognises excellence in teaching, learning and research. In recent years, through the RIB, SBUS has developed five research themes covering all areas in business to facilitate academic staff in engaging their research activities. RIB holds research seminars, workshops and conferences regularly to provide a platform for intellectual exchanges among local and overseas scholars.

I have the honour to serve as the Director of Research Institute for Business. SBUS colleagues have published in well-known academic journals. These top journals include Strategic Management Journal, Academy of Management Review, Journal of Management Studies. Management Science, Journal of Consumer Research, Journal of Finance, Journal of Financial Economics, Journal of Financial and Quantitative Analysis, Journal of Corporate Finance, Journal of International Business Studies, Accounting Review.

My objectives for RIB are two-fold. First. we aim to provide research support to HSU colleagues to generate relevant research in their own under the boundary area of the research themes. Second, we want to serve as a bridge between external researchers as well as industry professionals and SBUS for information dissemination including knowledge transfer.

Do you have any advice to our students and graduates if they want to find a way in the research field of business?

Personally, I think that HSUHK students have great potential and they will have achievements as long as they are hardworking, passionate and are not afraid of comparing with others. In terms of developing a research career in business, getting into a PhD programme in a well-known university is an obvious path. However, working in the business sector for a few years first to understand the industry practice and to develop more mature work ethics and personality are also important to decide which field

Student's Sharing

Greetings! My name is Wayne Yeung. I am a 2021 graduate student from the Master of Science in Entrepreneurial Management (MSc-EM) programme. It is my privilege to share some of my thoughts and personal experience with you as a student here at HSU.

Two years ago, one of my friends asked me: "Wayne, didn't you graduate from a Social Science degree your undergrad? Why did you choose to study business as your master's degree?" Just like many of you, starting a business and becoming your own boss is also in my to-dolist. Throughout the years at work, I have acknowledged that almost every industry is attached to business. This made me realise it is a must for me to learn more about this field. Here, I would like to share with you how I took the opportunities provided by HSU to push and transform myself in these two years.

Before I begin my story, I would like to give you a little bit of my background. The very first job I had was a Marketing & Public Relations Executive at a college located in Clear Water Bay. Before I applied for this job, I had always wanted to work in the educational field: the reason is that I understand that education really changes a person's mindset and his future. When I was a kid, I was never an A student, in fact, I was one of those who had a "bloody" report card with red failing marks were everywhere. During my primary school and first two years of secondary school in Hong Kong, I remember the teachers were strict and uninteresting. For a kid who was hyperactive, it was hard for me to focus and follow the rules. Hence, I have acknowledged that the traditional way of teaching in Hong Kong does not work well for a huge portion of the students.

In 2019, before COVID-19 began, Professor Thomas Man introduced a guest speaker, Mr. Alan Ng to one of our classes. Alan came in and talked about Finland, one of the most openminded and happiest countries in the world. He shared with us about Finland's culture, entrepreneurship culture, and his company's background. At the end of his lecture, he invited us to join his tour to Finland to attend one of Finland's annual iconic events, "SLUSH", where many creative and inspirational start-ups attended. I was fascinated by the presentation and told Alan that I would join the trip. After a nine-day trip, I met and connected with many entrepreneurs in Finland and most importantly, I was able to visit a school in Finland and talked to their teachers observed their study and environment. This inspired me to take the initiative to begin my thoughts on starting a Finland pedagogy playgroup. After that trip, I approached Alan to discuss with him and we have started to collaborate this project under his company InNordics.

Opportunities are in everywhere: always look out for the small details around you and do not hesitate too much to try something new. You can always be the same, but it is always just the same. If you want changes, stand up and go make changes for yourself. For the past two years, HSU has given me many connections. Not only did I start a business partnership with Alan, but I have built a strong relationship with the professors and classmates. They have given me important resources to my career. Go ahead and put yourself out there, build yourself a strong network, because one day your connections will become a great asset to you!
